REPORT ON THE REGIONAL TRAINING COURSES IN BASIC EARTH SCIENCE

DR. R. J. MORRISON
22nd May 1978

A Regional Training Course in Basic Earth Science was organized by University of the South Pacific's Institute of Natural Resources, as a consequence of a recommendation of the Fourth Session of the Committee for the Co-ordination of Offshore Prospecting in the South Pacific (CCOP/SOPAC). The course was funded by UNESCO/IOC and the Australian Government. This training course in geology, geochemistry and geophysics was aimed at meeting the needs of the South Pacific region for junior staff to help in geological surveying which will enable the countries of the region to exploit fully their mineral resources, both on land and off-shore.

The course ran from 1st November 1977 to 24th February 1978, having a total of 17 teaching weeks. Originally 18 participants were nominated but one, Mr Willie Harrison from the New Hebrides was unable to attend for personal reasons. The 17 participants, with nominating authorities and nominal sponsors are listed below:

The Course Director was Dr. C. D. Ollier of the Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, Canberra. He was assisted by the following teaching staff:

Dr. R. J. Morrison	}	From SNR, USP
Mr. J. Bonato
Mr. S. Muralidhar
Mr. R. McKenzie
Mr. J. Hallunen	}	From CEOP/SOPAC
Mr. J. Eade
Mr. P. Rodda		From MRD, Fiji
Dr. M. Leggo		From Amax Exploration Co. Ltd.

A technical assistant was also employed for the duration of the course.

The activities included in the course were lectures, practical demonstrations, assigned practical work, field trips (usually followed by laboratory work on samples), seminars and discussion groups. The field trips were mainly on Viti Levu, but also included a 4 day expedition to Ovalau, to give the participants an opportunity to experience some of the techniques involved in marine geological surveys.

The course attempted to cover as much elementary geology as possible, but time and the limited background of some of the participants caused some restrictions. The general topics covered in the course were: weathering, tectonics, coasts and rivers, earth structure, hydrology, coral islands, sand dunes, geological process rates, stratigraphy, volcanoes, economic geology, petrology, soils, and marine geology.

Participants were shown how to:

- 1) interpret geological maps, diagrams, and aerial photographs;
- 2) identify hand specimens of rocks and minerals (including those of economic importance);
- 3) use binocular, plain light and petrological microscopes;
- 4) identify fossils;
- 5) interpret seismograph readings;
- 6) use an echo sounder to study the shape of the ocean floor;
- 7) determine bearings, elevations, altitudes, etc;
- 8) carry out routine laboratory tests associated with the above activities;

- 9) carry out calculations on the various topics and activities where appropriate.

The participants were assessed continuously by spot tests, written assignments and performance in practical exercises. At the end of the course a series of examinations (one theory and three practical) was held. All the participants received certificates indicating that they had completed the course.

The Institute would like to thank all the aid donors whose generosity made the running of the course possible. Thanks are also due to the University staff and others who assisted with (i) transport to and from the airport, (ii) accommodation and catering arrangements, (iii) purchase and delivery of equipment, (iv) maintenance of equipment and (v) preparation of course materials.
